

CLEAN UP DAY
WAS SUCCESS

Large Quantities of Rubbish of all Kinds, Removed From Streets and Alleys.

MANY YARDS ALSO CLEANED.

The Women's Civic League Has Accomplished Good Work.—Has Other Plans for Future.

By tonight Seymour will know that it has had a clean-up day.

While there will be plenty of work to occupy the attention of the Women's Civic League in the future in the cleaning up and beautifying of the city, much has been accomplished today and during the past few days.

The League's appeals made through the papers and the personal visits of members of the various committees, have met with satisfactory responses from citizens.

Wednesday the members of the street and alley committees of which Mrs. Allen Swope and Mrs. L. A. Ebner, are the chairmen, visited the business men and asked them to have the streets and alleys adjacent to their business places thoroughly cleaned by today.

Today the members of these committees report that the business men generally complied with the requests. Large quantities of paper and trash have disappeared from streets, alleys and back yards and there is a general improvement in the appearance of the city.

The appeal made Wednesday evening by Mrs. Harry Miller, chairman of the yards committee, has induced many who had not already attended to the matter, to clean up their yards.

The League established headquarters in the city building today and from there and by members driving over the city, the work of cleaning up, was directed.

The League deserves commendation for the work it has accomplished and should have the co-operation of all in the work planned for the summer. It had not been intended to have "clean-up day" until later so that more preparations for it could be made, but the early date was fixed in order that the city might have a house cleaning before the merchants' bargain day crowds come to town.

The League is planning to offer some prizes later which, it is expected, will result in the beautifying of yards and streets and the removal of all the old cans and much other trash which may still be decorating back yards and alleys after today.

The case of Samuel E. Roberts against Dr. John A. Ritter for damages growing out of the shooting of Roberts some years ago, will come up for trial at the adjourned term of court. Judge John Lewis of Seymour, formerly prosecuting attorney of this district, has been selected to try the case. A change of venue was taken from Judge Utz, of New Albany at the February term of court.—Paoli News.

SAUERS' MOVE NOW

Has Received Final Proposition of Local Men.

It is now up to J. W. Sauers of the Gem Incubator Company of Trotwood, Ohio as to whether or not he will move his establishment to Seymour.

He was here Wednesday evening and with Ed Brown of Muncie, who owns the old American Chair Company building, which the factory will occupy if it is moved here, met with the committee appointed by the Seymour Improvement Company. N. Kaufman, J. G. Laupus and C. E. T. Dobbins of this committee, were present and they made a final proposition to Mr. Sauers. Mr. Brown who is interested as the owner of the building, has already agreed to his part of the deal and Mr. Sauers will interview the others interested in his factory before giving his answer to the proposition.

He left this morning for Ohio for this purpose. He is well pleased with Seymour and if he moves his plant here, he expects to begin at once to extend the business.

ANOTHER FINE

Paid This Morning By Clifford Sage.

Clifford Sage, who was involved in the exciting family row and shooting scrape at the corner of Fifth and Broadway Monday morning, was before Mayor Swope again this morning.

After entering a plea of guilty Monday to an assault and battery charge, another affidavit was filed against him by Marshal Abell, charging him with assault and battery with intent to kill, this charge being intended to cover Sage's action in shooting at his brother-in-law, Charles Hamilton. The case was set for trial this morning but since Monday the prosecuting witnesses, Hamilton and his wife have disappeared and the officers have been unable to find them.

As a consequence, the charge against Sage, was this morning, changed to one of drawing deadly weapons, it being the belief of the state that the original charge could not be proved with the Hamiltons missing.

Sage entered a plea of guilty to the last charge filed, and was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $15, which he paid.

The total gross resources of the order in Indiana were given as $4,242,028.69 and the net resources as $3,705,374.94. The number of lodges in the state was given as 763.

Is the Wheat Good?

Two men were disputing over their respective churches. One was a Baptist and one was a Presbyterian. Finally one of them called a neighbor who was passing and asked his opinion as to which was the better church in which to be saved. "Well, neighbor," he said, "son and I have been hauling wheat nearly forty years. There are two roads that lead to the mill. One is the valley road and the other leads over the hill and never yet has the miller asked me which road I came, but he always asks, 'Is the wheat good?'"

THE EXPENSES

On the B. & O. Are Now Down to Rock Bottom.

Not only have the expenses been greatly reduced on the B. & O. S-W. in Seymour and all along the line through Seymour, but the B. & O. has apparently drawn its expenses down to about the lowest practicable point during the past two months, although when comparisons begin to be made with the months of 1910 subsequent to April 1, the date on which most of the wage increases went into effect, better comparative results should be exhibited.

In March maintenance expenses were reduced by $420,872, of 19 per cent., while transportation expenses increased only $52,356, or 2 per cent. During nine months the average monthly reduction of maintenance expenses was $56,333, or 2.5 per cent. and the average monthly increase in transportation expenses was $376,546, or 15 per cent.

A PASSENGER

The train was stopped and the man was found unconscious beside the railway track with both legs and an arm broken.

He was taken to Lawrenceville, where he was put in the care of a physician.

It is believed the man, whose identity has not yet been learned, was suffering from a sudden attack of insanity.—Washington Democrat.

It is a cinch that this girl didn't get that hat without first seeing it—and trying on lots of other shapes before she finally decided that this big and cute creation became her beauty.

Yet there are many women who buy other things without ever having a chance to inspect the goods beforehand. They order from a catalogue. Instead of going shopping they use a sheet of paper and a postage stamp. They frequently get bunkoes instead of bargains from the mail order stores.

"Well," asked the father upon the return of his offspring, "was your uncle William glad to see you?" "Was he glad to see us?" said the eldest son, as though surprised by the query. "Why, dad, the very first thing he asked me was why we didn't bring you, mother, the cook, the housemaid and the dog."

SENATE IS DOWN ON RECIPROCITY

Plan Is to Amend the Bill to Death.

SOME QUEER COMBINATIONS

Insurgents, Standpatters, Free-List Democrats and Tariff-for-Revenue-Only Democrats Join in Movement to Put a Crimp in the President's Program, and the Prediction Seems Safe That Reciprocity Is Dead.

Washington, May 18.—An organized movement is said to have been instituted in the senate to delay the Canadian reciprocity bill and finally to kill it by the indirect method of amending it in a way that must prove fatal by adding a free list bill.

Unusual forces have rallied to the support of the plan. Standpat Republican senators who usually insist that the tariff duties cannot be laid too high to suit them, tariff-for-revenue Democrats who have been reading their "free raw material" brethren out of the party on the ground that such doctrine is rank heresy, and insurgent Republicans who insist they were the original advocates of Canadian reciprocity with a condition, namely, that it should be accompanied by a general revision downward on many articles, and a free list—all those are working together to amend the bill.

Opposing the proposed free list amendment are Democrats who stand for a general lowering of duties and an enlargement of the free list, but who insist that Canadian reciprocity is a step in the right direction and that it ought to be accepted as such to be followed by the other tariff reforms in their order. And for this attitude these Democrats are being chided by their tariff-for-revenue brethren as being inconsistent.

Senator Bailey, tariff-for-revenue-only Democrat, member of the finance committee, and his colleague and sympathizer, Senator Simmons of North Carolina, are working hand in glove with their insurgent colleagues, Senator La Follette and his followers, and their standpat Republican colleagues, Senators Smoot, Gallinger, Heyburn and Clark, in opposition to Canadian reciprocity and in favor of a free list.

Predictions are freely made about the senate that the reciprocity bill will be amended by adding a free list or an amendment providing a general lowering of duties, and that it will fail.

"If we can only amend the bill, which we hope to do, we can defeat it," said a standpat Republican member of the finance committee. The opponents of the agreement admit that the merits of the question standing as a single proposition, Canadian reciprocity will command from ten to fifteen majority in the senate. With objectionable free list amendment, an excuse might be offered to many senators to justify their action in voting against it.

CUSTOMS PROBE

Importers at Philadelphia Said to Have Been Defrauding Uncle Sam.

Philadelphia, May 18.—Criminal prosecution is to be brought by the United States government against importers in this customs district who are alleged to have defrauded it of millions of dollars through undervaluation of imported goods, fraudulent drawback claims and perjury. A probe to ascertain conditions existing in this port was started by Secretary MacVeagh of the treasury department in March, and when they learned that there was danger of civil and criminal prosecution, a number of importers hastened to make restitution.

GEORGE A. CARPENTER.

Prominent Jurist on the Federal Bench at Chicago.

THEIR PLEA DENIED

Judge Carpenter Again Tells Packers Where to Head In.

Chicago, May 18.—Judge George A. Carpenter in the United States district court refused to hear oral argument by attorneys for the indicted Chicago meat packers on their plea for a rehearing on the demurrers Judge Carpenter overruled May 12. The packers based their demands for a rehearing on the interpretation of the Sherman anti-trust law by the United States supreme court in the Standard Oil case, when the qualification of "reasonable" or "unreasonable" restraint of trade was recognized.

Judge Carpenter, in fixing a time for the filing of briefs, took occasion to indicate his position on the ruling of the United States supreme court, that it in no wise affected the penalty clauses of the Sherman act, but had to do only with what constituted a violation.

INSURRECTOS GAIN IMPORTANT POINTS

All Their Vital Demands Have Been Granted.

Mexico City, May 18.—President Diaz and Vice President Corral will resign before the end of May. Minister of Foreign relations Francisco De La Barra will act as president pro tem, naming a new secretary of foreign relations and secretary of war. Other members of the cabinet will be named by Madero along the lines indicated. The cabinet advised Diaz to sign an armistice immediately for the whole republic.

El Paso, Tex., May 18.—Judge Carbajal signed a five days' armistice agreement at 11 o'clock last night. It was signed by Madero earlier in the day, the federal peace envoy awaiting permission from Mexico.

The Mexican federal government grants the Mexican insurgents fourteen governors out of twenty-seven, three cabinet officers out of eight; will pay all debts contracted by the insurgents, including service pay for the men in arms in the insurgent army; grants amnesty to all rebels and permits them to take their rifles home with them; grants pensions for the killed and wounded the same as in the federal army; restores all federal army officers who have gone to the insurgents to their former positions in the army; fills certain army vacancies with officials of the insurgent army; will equalize taxation and will buy up all the large landed estates and resell them to small land owners.

These agreements have been reached and only their transfer to paper and the attaching of the proper signatures remains to be done. A five-day armistice has been declared for this work.

The news that Porfirio Diaz had placed in the hands of the Mexican cabinet his resignation, effective this month, electrified the rebels of Mexico. Madero at once announced that he would grant a five-day armistice throughout Mexico while the conditions for peace were put on paper. Judge Francisco Carbajal, representing the Mexican government, wired to Mexico City to ask for its ratification, which was granted.

INVITE YOUR FRIENDS IN THE COUNTY TO VISIT SEYMOUR DURING THIS GREAT SALE

Friday, Saturday and Monday,
May 19th, 20th and 22nd

Special Bargains For You At Every Store in Seymour

GREAT CHANCE TO BUY MERCHANDISE

Everybody Should Arrange to Come to Seymour for This Occasion.

RAILROAD FARES TO BE PAID

Friday, Saturday and Monday to Be Greatest Bargain Days in History of Seymour and Jackson County.

That the Special Bargain Sale in Seymour will mean everything that the words can possibly imply is an assured fact. Practically every merchant in the city has made a reduction of prices in his line of goods for this sale and those in need of anything from a dish pan to a complete outfit for a home or from a pair of hose to a complete clothing outfit, shoes and all, should avail themselves of this opportunity to lay in a supply of merchandise for spring and summer uses at unprecedented prices.

Not only have the merchants marked down the prices of their goods, but in addition to these reductions, they will refund the railroad fares to all out-of-town customers who buy anything to speak of at all.

So it can readily be seen that it will be a great opportunity for the people of this section to save money on anything they may need for some time to come.

An Explanation.

Many may wonder why the merchants of Seymour have united in a movement of this kind, but the reason is simple when explained. The idea was first conceived and it might be said promoted by the Republican. Each merchant was requested to make a cut in prices for three days, Friday, Saturday and Monday, May 19, 20 and 22, and at the same time agree to refund the railroad fares of all out-of-town customers on these three days. The plan met with the approval of nearly every merchant and as a result it will mean the biggest trading opportunity ever known to Seymour. Of course it has created competition among the merchants and each will try and undersell the other during this sale. Cost will have nothing to do with the selling price—it is now just a matter of getting rid of the goods.

But this is all the better for the people who have to buy and as stated above next Friday, Saturday and Monday will be a great opportunity to lay in the spring and summer's supply of merchandise at ridiculously low prices.

HOW TO GET YOUR FARE BACK

Persons coming to Seymour from any of the above named places to trade during this Big Combination Sale will get their railroad fares refunded providing their purchases amount to the sums designated in this schedule.

Refund fare slips will be furnished all merchants who have agreed to pay their proportion of the fares to out-of-town customers during this sale and in order for you to get your fare refunded you should obtain one of these slips of the first merchant from whom you make a purchase. This slip will contain a list of all the merchants who are in on the big combination sale, with blank space for each to put down the amount of your purchase. This slip is retained by you and afterwards presented at each store at which you buy anything during the day and then before you leave for home the slip is to be taken to the REPUBLICAN office where your fare will be refunded in cash providing your purchases during the day amount to the sum required according to the above schedule.

By this method it will be readily seen that you will not have to buy everything from one store, or the full amount required which entitles you to your fare back from any certain merchant, but on the contrary you can patronize as many different stores as you like and if your purchases amount to the required sum your fare will be refunded in cash by presenting the slip at the REPUBLICAN office anytime before leaving for home.

Farmers Included as Well as Townspeople

Fares will be refunded to all persons who come from a distance equal to any of the towns in the above schedule whether by team or rail. And this will include farmers as well as persons living in towns. The price of a railroad ticket to and from any of these places will be refunded to all persons whether farmers or townspeople who drive to Seymour to trade during this big sale just as though they came by the Southern Indiana, Pennsylvania, B. & O. or Interurban railroad. For instance a person residing in Brownstown or a farmer who lives nearer that place than any other towns from which fares are to be refunded, who drives to Seymour to trade during the sale will get the price of a railroad ticket providing his purchases amount to the required sum.

Amounts equivalent to railroad fares according to the distance will be refunded to all persons coming from or near any of the inland towns listed above the same as if located on the railroad. Come by team or rail and get your fare back or an amount equal to it. Read the schedule carefully and don't forget to ask the first merchant from whom you make a purchase for a refund fare slip, so you can keep account of your purchases.

There is a rumor today that a petition will be circulated by poker players and men who patronize the gaming tables, asking that the new policeman be removed from the police force. If this proves true, it is the best indication that he is doing his duty, and that he should be retained on the police force. The large majority of people want the law enforced and they should make it understood that they are supporting the man who will do his duty and compel observance of the law.

WANT PRESIDENT TO INVESTIGATE

Manufacturers Seek National Probe of Dynamiters.

KIRBY RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT

In Accepting With Thanks This Mark of Favor, President of National Manufacturers' Association Makes Onslaught on Labor Unions—Former Fire Chief Croker Tells Manufacturers Why He Quit the Service.

New York, May 18.—By re-electing John Kirby, jr., its president, the National Manufacturers' association wound up its sixteenth annual meeting at the Waldorf. In thanking the manufacturers Mr. Kirby made this prediction: "I believe that in five years conditions will be such that the independent laboring man will be able to go about without the fear of being hit on the head with a piece of lead pipe or blown up."

The manufacturers applauded this statement and passed resolutions calling on President Taft to have the department of justice investigate instances where dynamite had been used in labor troubles, to take steps to punish those who enforce the boycott, and to take means "to assure the enforcing of the law for the protection of life, liberty and property of citizens menaced by the acts and purposes of these combinations and to bring about the dissolution of such combinations," meaning primarily the American Federation of Labor.

Edward F. Croker, ex-chief of the fire department, got a warm greeting from the manufacturers when he spoke on fire prevention. Croker bluntly told the manufacturers that he quit the New York fire department after twenty-seven years, twelve years of which he was the boss fire fighter, because of what he saw at the Asch building fire.

"What I saw there," he continued, "was indescribable. But what I saw inside and outside of that building made me take up fire prevention for the purpose of saving lives. Being a fireman had been a pleasure—a hobby—I never thought it work. Sometimes there were cold nights and not much sleep, but I liked it. When I saw what happened at that Asch fire I quit."

"I have found," he said, "great neglect on the part of the employer to protect the life of the employee."

Two young lawyers in evening clothes invaded the dinner of the National Manufacturers' association at the Waldorf last night to serve summonses in a suit for libel brought by James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical union, against John Kirby, president of the association, and twenty-two members of it. Lynch asks for $100,000 damages. The suit is based on a resolution adopted by the association on Oct. 13, 1910, in which it was charged that the typographical union was determined to destroy the business of the Los Angeles Times, whose building was dynamited two weeks before.

WILL INVESTIGATE

Congress Decides to Probe Affairs of Sugar Trust.

Washington, May 18.—The consideration of the resolution naming a committee to inquire into the operations of companies engaged in manufacturing and selling sugar, brought out a sharp debate in which both Republicans and Democrats discussed caucus secrets with amazing frankness. The resolution was passed, Representative Hardwick of Georgia being named chairman of the committee. Representative Olmsted of Pennsylvania, Republican, has resigned from the committee that is authorized to probe the affairs of the United States Steel corporation. He gave as his reason for asking to be excused from the committee that one of the concerns named is located in his district and that many of its officers are "his warm personal friends." The resignation was accepted.

To Close Postoffices on Sunday.

Washington, May 18.—A bill prohibiting any postoffice to remain open on Sunday for the delivery of mail to the public was introduced in the house by Representative Mann, the Republican floor leader. This is in line with the announced policy of the postoffice department authorities.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crisped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

The New Court Room.

Now that the court house is nearing completion, many are wondering if the new court room will seat as many persons as the old one. Well, that entirely depends. The new court room is just twelve feet smaller one way than the old one, and if too much room is not taken up with the bar, it can be made to seat as many persons as before, from the fact that the seats can be placed closer together and still be comfortable. We have heard it intimated that there is some talk of taking up almost one-half of the room for the bar, which we certainly hope is not true. Formerly it was the custom for almost anyone to sit within the railing surrounding the bar, but for a number of years past, it has been an established rule that no one but attorneys and their clients be permitted in the space set apart for the bar so that it would seem that there is no necessity for this purpose, thereby ruining the court room for political conventions, farmers' meetings and other public gatherings.—Brownstown Banner.

SEE PROSPECT

Bedford People Hope I. C. & S. Will Build Feeder From That City.

The Bedford Democrat believes that town has another prospect for a traction line. If the hopes of Bedford are realized, it will mean a new line for Seymour and Jackson county. The Democrat says:

The Democrat was given a tip this afternoon that may mean that Bedford is finally to have a traction line. The tip is that Frank T. Smith of Columbus, the right-of-way man for the Indianapolis, Columbus and Southern Traction company, has been in the city for the past two days and that his business here is the securing of a right of way through the county for an extension of the Indianapolis, Columbus and Southern company.

No one appears to have any real information in reference to the matter, but it is a fact that Mr. Smith has been here and it is more than possible that he has been quietly securing options on the right of way before any announcement is made that the company intends to extend its line this way.

The Indianapolis, Columbus and Southern is owned largely by the Irvins, of Columbus, and if they really undertake to build a line through to Bedford they will build it.

CHAPTER XII.

"MUST I TELL THESE THINGS?"

"SOMETHING went on at dinner time. It was not a usual meal, but put in the district attorney. 'You and your sisters'—"

"Stop! Don't talk to me about that dinner. I want to forget that dinner. I want to forget everything but the two things I live for—to see that fellow hanged and to— The words choked him, and he let his head fall, but presently threw it up again. 'That dastard, whom may God confound, passed a letter across Adelaide into Carmel's hand,' he panted out. 'I saw him, but I didn't take it in. I wasn't thinking. I was'—"

"Who broke the glasses," urged his relentless inquisitor, "one at your plate, one at Carmel's and one at the head of the board where sat your sister Adelaide?"

"Must I tell these things? Have it, then! Heaven knows I think of it enough not to be afraid to speak it out in words. Adelaide never had much patience with me. She was a girl who only saw one way, while I wanted pleasure, a free time and a good drink whenever the fancy took me. You know what I am, Dr. Perry, and everybody in town knows, but the impulse which has always ruled me was not a downright evil one, or if it was I called it natural independence and let it go at that. But Adelaide suffered. I didn't understand it, and I didn't care a fig for it, but she did suffer. God forgive me!"

He stopped and mopped his forehead. "That afternoon," he presently resumed, "she was keyed up more than usual. She loved Ranelagh, and he had played or was playing her false. She saw him look at Carmel, and she saw Carmel look at him. Then her eyes fell on me. I was angry—angry at them all—and I wanted a drink. It was not her habit to have wine on the table, but sometimes when Ranelagh was there she did. She was a slave to Ranelagh. 'Ring the bell,' I ordered, 'and have in the champagne. I want to drink to your marriage and the happy days in prospect for us all.' It was brutal, and I knew it, but I was reckless and wild for the wine. So, I guess, was Ranelagh, for he smiled at her, and she rang for the champagne. When the glasses had been set beside each plate she turned toward Carmel. 'We will all drink,' she said, 'to my coming marriage.' This made Carmel turn pale, for Adelaide had never been known to drink a drop of liquor in her life. I felt a little queer myself, and not one of us spoke till the glasses were filled and the maid had left the dining room and shut the door.

"Then Adelaide rose. 'We will drink standing,' said she, and never had I seen her look as she did then. She drank. We wouldn't call it drinking, for she just touched the wine with her lips, but to her it was debauch. Then she stood waiting, with the strangest gleam in her eyes, while Ranelagh drained his glass and I drained mine. Ranelagh thought she wanted some sentiment and started to say something appropriate, but his eye fell on Carmel, who had tried to drink and couldn't, and he bungled over his words and at last came to a pause under the steady stare of Adelaide's eyes.

"'Never mind, Elwood,' she said. 'I know what you would like to say. But that's not what I am thinking of now. I am thinking of my brother, the boy who will soon be left to find his way through life without even the unwelcome restraint of my presence. I want him to remember this day. I want him to remember me as I stand here before him with this glass in my hand. You see wine in it, Arthur; but I see poison. Carmel, you have grieved as well as I over what has passed for pleasure in this house. Do as I do, and may Arthur see and remember.'"

"Her fingers opened; the glass fell from her hand and lay in broken fragments beside her plate. Carmel followed suit, and, before I knew it, my own fingers had opened and my own glass lay in pieces on the tablecloth beneath me. Only Ranelagh's hand remained steady. She held her breath, watching that hand, and I can hear the gasp yet with which she saw him set his glass down quietly on the board. That's the story of those three broken glasses."

The district attorney sought out and lifted a paper from the others lying on the desk before him. It was the first movement he had made since Cumberland began his tale.

"I'm sorry," said he, with a rapid examination of the paper in his hand, "but I shall have to detain you a few minutes longer. What happened after the dinner? Where did you go from the table?"

"I went to my room to smoke. I was upset and thirsty as a fish."

"Have you liquor in your room?"

"Sometimes."

"Did you have any that night?"

"Not a drop. I didn't dare. I wanted that champagne bottle, but Adelaide had been too quick for me. It was thrown out—wasted—I do believe, wasted."

"So you did not drink? You only smoked in your room?"

"Smoked one cigar. That was all. Then I went down town."

"May I ask by which door you left the house?"

"The side door—the one I always take."

"What overcoat did you wear?"

"I don't remember. The first one I came to, I suppose."

"But you can surely tell what hat?"

"They expected a violent reply, and they got it."

"No, I can't. What has my hat got to do with the guilt of Elwood Ranelagh?"

"Nothing, we hope," was the imperturbable answer. "But we find it necessary to establish absolutely just what overcoat and what hat you wore down street that night."

"I've told you that I don't remember." The young man's color was rising.

"Are not these the ones?" queried the district attorney, making a sign to Sweetwater, who immediately stepped forward, with a shabby old ulster over his arm and a battered derby in his hand.

The young man started, rose, then sat again, shouting out with angry emphasis:

"No!"

"Yet you recognize these?"

"Why shouldn't I? They're mine. Only I don't wear them any more. They're done for. You must have rooted them out from some closet."

"Mr. Cumberland,"—the district attorney was very serious—"this hat and this coat, old as they are, were worn into town from your house that night. This we know absolutely. We can even trace them to the clubhouse."

Mechanically, not spontaneously this time, the young man rose to his feet, staring first at the man who had uttered these words, then at the garments which Sweetwater still held in his hand.

"I don't know anything about it," were the words with which he sought to escape from the net which had been thus deftly cast about him. "I didn't wear the things. Anybody can tell you what clothes I came home in. Ranelagh may have borrowed."

"Ranelagh wore his own coat and hat. Mr. Cumberland, you have told us that you didn't know at the time and can't remember now, where you spent that night and most of the next morning. All you can remember is that it was in some place where they let you drink all you wished and leave when the fancy took you, and not before. It was none of your usual haunts. You dreaded to have your sister know how soon you could escape the influence of that moment. You wished to drink your fill and leave your family none the wiser. Am I not right?"

"Yes, it's plain enough, isn't it? Why harp on that string?"

"You cannot remember the saloon in which you drank. That's possible enough, but perhaps you can remember what they gave you. Was it whisky, rum, absinth or what?"

The question took his irritable listener by surprise. Arthur gasped and tried to steal some comfort from Coroner Perry's eye, but that old friend's face was too much in the shadow.

"I drank—absinth," he cried at last.

"From this bottle?" queried the other, motioning again to Sweetwater, who now brought forward the bottle he had picked up in Cuthbert road.

Arthur Cumberland glanced at the bottle the detective held up, saw the label, saw the shape and sank limply in his chair, his eyes starting, his jaw falling.

"Where did you get that?" he asked, pulling himself together with sudden desperate self-possession.

"That," answered the district attorney, "was picked up at a small hotel on Cuthbert road, just back of the markets, not far from the Whispering Pines."

"I don't know the place."

"It's not a high class resort, not select enough by a long shot to have this brand of liquor in its cellar. There were only two bottles of it left in the clubhouse when the inventory was last taken. Those two bottles are now gone, and—"

"This is one of them? Is that what you want to say? Well, it may be for all I know. I didn't carry it there. I didn't have the drinking of it."

"We have seen the man and woman who kept that hotel. They will talk if they have to."

"They will?" His dogged self-possession rather astonished them. "Well, that ought to please you. I've nothing to do with the matter."

A change had taken place in him. The irritability approaching to violence which had attended every speech and infused itself into every movement since he came into the room had left him. He spoke quietly and with a touch of irony in his tone.

"Then I have no doubt but you will do us this favor," volunteered Sweetwater in his pleasantest manner. "It's not a long walk from here. Will you go there in my company, with your coat collar pulled up and your hat well down over your eyes, and ask for a seat in the snuggery and show them this bottle? They won't know that it's empty. The man is sharp and the woman intelligent. They will see that you are a stranger and admit you readily. They are only shy of one man—the man who drank there on the night of your sister's murder."

"You're a —" he began, with a touch of his old violence. But, realizing, perhaps, that his fingers were in a trap, he modified his manner again and continued more quietly: "This is an odd request to make. I won't go with you to that low drinking hell unless you make me, but I'll swear!"

"Don't swear." It is unnecessary to say who spoke. "We wouldn't believe you, and it would be only adding perjury to the rest."

"You wouldn't believe me?"

"No; we have reasons, my boy. There were two bottles."

"Well?"

"The other has been found nearer your home."

"That's a trick. You're all up to tricks!"

"Not in this case, Arthur. Let me entreat you in memory of your father to be candid with us. We have arrested a man. He denies his guilt, but can produce no witnesses in support of his assertions. Yet such witnesses may exist. Indeed, we think that one such does exist. The man who took the bottles from the clubhouse's wine vault did so within a few minutes of the time when this crime was perpetrated on your sister. He should be able to give valuable testimony for or against Elwood Ranelagh."

"This is awful!" Young Cumberland had risen to his feet and was swaying to and fro before them like a man struck between the eyes by some maddening blow.

"If I had only died that night!" he muttered, with his eyes upon the floor and every muscle tense with the shock of this last calamity.

"Dr. Perry, let me go for tonight. Let me think. My brain is all in a whirl. I'll try to answer tomorrow."

But even as he spoke he realized the futility of his request. His eye had fallen on a bottle on the table, and in its shape and tell-tale label he held a witness bound to testify against him if he kept silent himself.

"Don't answer," he went on. "I may as well own the truth and be done with it. I was in the clubhouse. I did rob the wine vault. I did carry off the bottles to have a quiet spree, and it was to some place on Cuthbert road I went. But when I've admitted so much I've admitted all. I saw nothing of what went on in the rooms upstairs. I crept in by the open window at the top of the kitchen stairs, and I came out by the same. I only wanted the liquor, and when I got it I slid out as quickly as I could and made my way over the golf links to the road."

The district attorney's voice sounded thin, almost piercing, as he made this remark:

"You entered by an open window. Why didn't you go in by the door?"

"I hadn't the key. I had only abstracted the one which opens the wine vault. The rest I left on the ring. It was the sight of this key lying on our hall table which first gave me the idea. I feel like a cad when I think of it, but that's of no account now."

Flushed, he slowly sank back into his seat. No complaint now of being in a hurry or of his anxiety to regain his sick sister's bedside. He seemed to have forgotten those fears in the perturbations of the moment. His mind and interest were there; everything else had grown dim with distance.

"Did you try the front door?"

"What was the use? I knew it to be locked."

"What was the use of trying the window? Wasn't it also, presumably, locked?"

The red mounted hot and feverish to his cheek.

"You'll think me no better than a street urchin or something worse," he exclaimed. "I knew that window. I had been through it before. You can move that lock with your knife blade. I had calculated on entering that way."

"Mr. Ranelagh's story receives confirmation," commented the district attorney, wheeling suddenly toward the coroner. "He says that he found this window unlocked when he approached it with the idea of escaping that way."

Arthur Cumberland remained unmoved.

The district attorney wheeled back.

"There were a number of bottles taken from the wine vault. Some half dozen were left on the kitchen table. Why did you trouble yourself to carry up so many?"

"Because my greed outran my convenience. I thought I could lug away an armful, but there are limits to one's ability. I realized this when I remembered how far I had to go and so left the greater part of them behind."

"Why, when you had a team ready to carry you?"

"A—I had no team." But the denial cost him something. His cheek lost its ruddiness and took on a sickly white which did not leave it again as long as the interview lasted.

"You had no team? How then did you manage to reach home in time to make your way back to Cuthbert road by half past 11?"

"I didn't go home. I went straight across the golf links. If fresh snow hadn't fallen you would have seen my tracks all the way to Cuthbert road."

"If fresh snow had not fallen we should have known the whole story of that night before an hour had passed. How did you carry those bottles?"

"In my overcoat pockets—these pockets," he hurried out, clapping his hands on either side of him.

"Had it begun to snow when you left the clubhouse?"

"No."

"Was it dark?"

"I guess not; the links were bright as day, or I shouldn't have got over them as quickly as I did."

"Quickly? How quickly?" The district attorney stole a glance at the

The district attorney wheeled back.

"There were a number of bottles taken from the wine vault. Some half dozen were left on the kitchen table. Why did you trouble yourself to carry up so many?"

"Because my greed outran my convenience. I thought I could lug away an armful, but there are limits to one's ability. I realized this when I remembered how far I had to go and so left the greater part of them behind."

"Why, when you had a team ready to carry you?"

"A—I had no team." But the denial cost him something. His cheek lost its ruddiness and took on a sickly white which did not leave it again as long as the interview lasted.

"You had no team? How then did you manage to reach home in time to make your way back to Cuthbert road by half past 11?"

"I didn't go home. I went straight across the golf links. If fresh snow hadn't fallen you would have seen my tracks all the way to Cuthbert road."

"If fresh snow had not fallen we should have known the whole story of that night before an hour had passed. How did you carry those bottles?"

"In my overcoat pockets—these pockets," he hurried out, clapping his hands on either side of him.

"Had it begun to snow when you left the clubhouse?"

"No."

"Was it dark?"

"I guess not; the links were bright as day, or I shouldn't have got over them as quickly as I did."

"Quickly? How quickly?" The district attorney stole a glance at the coroner, which made Sweetwater advance a step from his corner.

"I don't know. I don't understand these questions," was the sullen reply.

"You walked quickly. Does that mean you didn't look back?"

"How look back?"

"Your sister lit a candle in the small room where her coat was found. This light should have been visible from the golf links."

"I didn't see any light."

A few more questions followed, but they were of minor import and aroused less violent feeling. The serious portion of the examination, if that it might be called, was over.

The coroner glanced meaningfully at the district attorney, who, tapping with his fingers on the table, hesitated for a moment before he finally turned again upon Arthur Cumberland.

"You wish to return to your sister? You are at liberty to do so. I will trouble you no more tonight. Your sleigh is at the door, I presume."

They watched him go, each as silent as he. The coroner tried to speak, but succeeded no better than the boy himself. When the door opened under his hand they all showed relief, but were startled back into their former attention by his turning suddenly in the doorway with this final remark:

"What did you say about a bottle with a special label on it being found at our house? It never was, or, if it was, some fellow has been playing you a trick. I carried off those two bottles myself. One you see there; the other is—I can't tell where, but I didn't take it home. That you can bet on."

One more look, followed by a heavy frown and a low growling sound in his throat—which may have been his way of saying goodbye—and he was gone.

A few more words, some understanding as to the morrow, and Sweetwater was also gone. The district attorney and the coroner still sat, but very little passed between them. The clock overhead struck the hour. Both looked up, but neither moved. Another fifteen minutes; then the telephone rang. The coroner rose and lifted the receiver. The message could be heard by both gentlemen in the extreme quiet of this midnight hour.

"Dr. Perry?"

"Yes, I'm listening."

"He came in at a quarter to 12, greatly agitated and very white. I ran upon him in the lower hall, and he looked angry enough to knock me down, but he simply let out a curse and passed straight up to his sister's room. I waited till he came out; then I managed to get hold of the nurse, and she told me this queer tale:

"He was all in a tremble when he came in, but she declares he had not been drinking. He went immediately to the bedside, but his sister was asleep, and he didn't stay there, but went over where the nurse was and began to hang about her till suddenly she felt a twitch at her side and, looking quickly, saw the little book she carries there falling back into place. He had lifted it and probably read what she had written in it during his absence."

"She was displeased, but he laughed when he saw that he had been caught and said boldly: 'You are keeping a record of my sister's ravings. Well, I think I'm as interested in them as you are and have as much right as you to read as you write.' She made no answer, for they were innocent enough, but she'll keep the book away from him after this—of that you may be sure."

"And what is he doing now? Is he going into his own room tonight?"

"No. He went there, but only to bring out his pillows. He will sleep in the alcove."

"Drink?"

Failed in Health

"My mother died six years ago," writes Miss Ruth Ward, of Jerseyville, Ill., "and left me to care for six children. I had never been strong; and this, with the shock of her death, was too much for me."

"I failed in health. I was tired all the time and did not want to go anywhere, nor care for company. I had the headache all the time and such bearing-down pains. A very dear friend advised me to take Cardui, as it had done her so much good, so I commenced to use it and now I am in good health."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Women's pains are relieved or prevented and women's strength is quickly restored, by Cardui, the woman's tonic. You yourself know best if you need it, or not.

If you do need it, do not delay, but commence to use it at once. Every day of delay, only lets you slide further down the hill.

Don't wait, then, but begin to take Cardui today, for its use, no matter how prolonged, cannot harm you and will surely do you good.

RESIDENCE ON BUNGALOW LINES.

Design 840 A, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

This is a full two story house, but the treatment of roof and dormers gives it the appearance of a story and a half bungalow. The walls are sided, and the gables over dormers are panels of rough cast cement. The interior arrangement is a very desirable one, combining a large living room across the entire end, a central hall and a liberal dining room at the front of the house. In the second story are four splendid chambers, with ample closet space. Size of house 32½ by 28 feet over the main part. First story nine feet, second story eight feet. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $3,200.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 840 A for $25.

FARMERS SOLD IMPURE MILK

And Were Bitterly Scored In Federal Court.

GIVEN WARNING NOT TO RETURN

"Go Home and Tell Your Neighbors How Much the Court Fined You," Said Judge Anderson, "and Remember This Is Not a Circumstance to What You Will Get if You Are Brought Here Again."

Indianapolis, May 18.—Fifteen farmers of Dearborn and Ripley counties pleaded guilty in federal court to shipping impure milk to Cincinnati. Twelve of them received fines of $25 and costs and three, who had previously been before the court, were fined $100 each. Judge Anderson was emphatic in his declaration that the sale of impure milk must stop.

"If conditions in southern Indiana are such that a man can't live there and be honest, you had better move out," said the judge. "Go home and tell your neighbors how much the court fined you. And also remember that this is not a circumstance to what you will get if you are brought here again on the same charge."

The three milk shippers who were fined $100 were E. J. Koehning, L. H. Schulte and Henry A. Bobrick. Koehning when before the federal court some time ago on the charge of watering his milk, asserted that he put the water in to cool it. H. C. Kitchen, federal food and dairy inspector, said that analyses of the shipments to Cincinnati showed that the milk contained from two to fifteen millions of bacilli to the cubic centimeter, the bacilli being of the kind found in typhoid cases.

FAMILY OF COUNTERFEITERS

Notable Record of Crime in the Case of Adam Rackie.

Indianapolis, May 18.—Adam Rackie, sixty-four years old, who has served seventeen years for counterfeiting, will go to the Leavenworth prison for another ten years. This sentence, which is the maximum, was given Rackie by Judge Anderson after Rackie had entered a plea of guilty in federal court. The man is said by Captain Thomas Halls of the United States secret service, to be one of the most expert counterfeiters in the country, and one of the oldest and most experienced in the game.

That he has reared a family of counterfeiters also was stated to the court. One of Rackie's sons is now at Leavenworth serving a ten-year sentence. Another son has had two terms for counterfeiting. A son-in-law of Rackie also "went up" on the same charge. A daughter, who is feeble-minded, was involved with Rackie in circulating the counterfeit coin at Gary, for which he was indicted, but because of her mental condition no charge was made against her. Rackie has served two terms of two and four years at Joliet, one term of eight years at Stillwater, and one term of three years at Jefferson City. He is a Hoosier, but has operated more extensively in other states. He now owns a home near Gary.

Rural Mail Carrier Sentenced.

Indianapolis, May 18.—With the remark that it would have to be understood that a government employee who was entrusted with funds or put in a position of trust must obey the law, Judge Anderson sentenced John H. Belcher, a South Bend rural mail carrier, to the federal prison for one year for removing stamps from mail for the purpose of again using the stamps. The five counts in the indictment to which Belcher pleaded guilty charged the removal of stamps of a total value of 11 cents.

End of Youthful Bandit Gang.

Logansport, Ind., May 18.—Noah Morehead and Arley Manuels, the boy bandits who terrorized the community for weeks by their daring robberies and holdup work, and who were arrested after an exciting pistol duel with the police a few weeks ago, were sentenced to from ten to twenty years in the Indiana reformatory. The real leader of the gang is Clarence Shaw.

Young Woman's Neck Broken.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 18.—Miss Mary Frischman, twenty-three years old, was instantly killed when she leaped from a moving streetcar. Her neck was broken. The girl had passed the street where she was to join a party for a hay ride, and when she heard the calls of her friends, jumped from her seat. She fell on her head, which was crushed.

Graduating Class in Mourning.

Warsaw, Ind., May 18.—Maurice Gary and Bernard Minear, two members of the graduating class of the Warsaw high school, were drowned in Tippecanoe lake, where the class was holding a picnic. The commencement exercises of the class, which were to have been held tomorrow evening, will be changed to memorial exercises.

Indiana Odd Fellows Meet.

QUESTION AS TO WHAT IS CHAMPAGNE CAUSE OF THE WINE RIOTS IN FRANCE

The Vine Growers of Marne and Aube Trying to Settle It

Five Million Bottles of Champagne Destroyed by Mobs

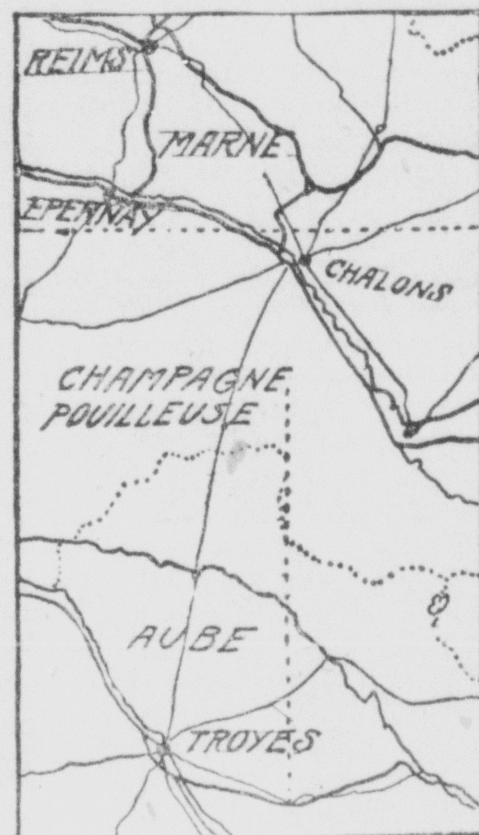

THE champagne riots in France, in which thousands of gallons of excellent wine have been destroyed and which have not yet ended, have their origin in the question, What is champagne? Back of that question lies a much greater one, involving the livelihood of the vine growers of the ancient champagne district, all of whom are intensely excited about the proposition to restrict by law the use of the title "champagne" to the product of the department of Marne. The ques-ravages of phylloxera and the substitution of new American vines for the infected French vines in full bearing have reduced the grape crop in Aube to practically nothing during the last four years.

But with the present prospect of a good crop this year and the expressed intention of the French government to prevent Aulnois from calling their wine champagne the winemakers of Aube grew restless. Early in April the committee on agriculture recommended to the chamber of deputies a modification of the law of delimitation whereby fizzing wines made in Aube might be labeled "Champagne," but with the line beneath "Made from grapes grown in Aube." The vigneron (wine growers) arose in wrath. Twenty thousand of them made on April 9 a peaceful demonstration at their city of Troyes, which, by the way, is the capital of the ancient county of Champagne.

Damage by Rioters.

The French senate promptly recommended that the champagne boundary be extended to other districts. This quieted the Aulnois, but roused the men of Marne to rage. A call was issued for a mass meeting at Epernay. A vast column of vine growers marched through the valley, smashed 250,000 bottles of champagne at Dizey and other places before the authorities knew they had started and erected barricades and waved the red flag. Some carried banners proclaiming that if France would not protect them they would migrate to Prussia. Every day for nearly a week the columns assembled from farms and villages to make manifestation. Some were headed by brass bands. There were many women in the ranks. The news that the senate on April 11 had adopted a resolution to abolish all territorial limitations as likely to provoke dissensions among vine growers added fresh zest to the manifestations and to the violence. At Ay some one (as yet undetected) threw a bomb. Dragoons rode the people down, and stones and bottles were thrown, but no one was hurt. Great mobs destroyed 5,000,000 bottles of champagne in various depots in the tion of delimitation means economic life or death to the vine growers of the Marne, the Aube and other districts near by; hence the riots, in which tens of thousands of hardworking citizens have participated, much property has been destroyed and the red flag has been flaunted and against which 15,000 soldiers have taken the field.

What is champagne? Originally the title was applied to the effervescent white wine made of the grapes grown in the ancient county of Champagne. This province, 180 miles long by 150 miles broad, had its capital at Troyes and was governed by its own counts until 1361, when it was incorporated in the kingdom of France. The province forms the present departments of Marne, Haute-Marne, Seine-et-Marne, Aube, Ardennes, Aisne and Yonne. In many parts of the ancient province grapes grew above a chalky subsoil and thence drew some chemical property which caused their juice to produce a light white wine of delightful bubbling quality. This was the wine that made the name Champagne famous the world over.

Most of the grapes grew in the departments of Marne and Aube, though there are vineyards in Marne to this day that lack the characteristic champagne property—that is, they do not produce an effervescent wine without aid. Nevertheless the making and mar-

VINE GROWERS MAKING A DEMONSTRATION. keting of champagne were carried on during generations, some vineyards producing veritable champagne and jealously guarding their wine and its reputation from any admixture with inferior products, while other houses blended the juices of various kinds of grapes, producing nevertheless a wine known and sold as champagne.

The Delimitation Law.

Only recently has the law been invoked to aid the makers of champagne in one department to the disadvantage of the rest.

Under the delimitation law the use of the word champagne was confined to a very small district in the department of Marne. Until 1905 the departments of Aube, Haute-Marne, Ardennes and Aisne had sold their raw wines to certain merchants of Reims and Epernay, who made champagne of them. The new law prevented the outlying people from sending their wine into the Marne as usual. The Standard Oil Company's Chief Counsel Finding a Way Out.

STANDARD FIXING TO BEAT THAT DECISION

Already a Plan Has Been Prepared.

New York, May 18.—The attorneys and big chiefs of the Standard Oil company have got down to work on plans to meet the decision of the supreme court and dissolve.

After a careful inspection of the decision of the supreme court, Moritz Rosenthal, chief counsel for the Standard, said that the Standard could reorganize by being divided into producing, manufacturing, transportation and selling companies.

"The decree of dissolution," he said, "seems to concede the right to the subsidiary companies to combine in a single organization of each subdivision whose operations are similar, such as all producers, all manufacturers, etc. It would, therefore, seem to me that the company could be broken up into four parts, each to be operated within the statute, and thus meet the letter and spirit of the decision."

TO BE REORGANIZED

J. P. Morgan to Put His Imprint on Baldwin Locomotive Works.

Philadelphia, May 18.—About $20,000,000 of water is to be injected into the Baldwin Locomotive works under the plan by which J. P. Morgan is about to come into the company. The new capitalization has been fixed on a basis of the earning power of the concern. This has ranged from $4,000,000 up to $6,000,000 net per annum in the last five years. With capital of $40,000,000, half to be issued as preferred and half as common stock, the Philadelphia Locomotive company will be chartered at Harrisburg on June 5.

Mrs. Taft Able to Return Home.

New York, May 18.—Mrs. W. H. Taft continues to improve and left for Washington at 10 o'clock this morning. Miss Helen Taft, Major Archie Butt, Dr. Evans Evans and a trained nurse accompanied her.

Young Man Decapitated.

Attica, Ind., May 18.—A young man, as yet unidentified, was killed when he attempted to get off a through freight train. The head was severed and the body badly mangled.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The senate is still deadlocked in its effort to elect a president pro tem.

W. G. Pritchard of Norfolk, Va., was elected commander-in-chief of the United Sons of Confederate Veterans at the Little Rock meeting.

It is semi-officially announced that the German-American potash conference at Hamburg has reached a complete understanding and the conference is now busy working out the details.

A negro valet named John Cato, thirty-seven years old, ran amuck on the street at New York and before he was slain by a policeman had killed two persons and wounded several others.

The final report of the Illinois state senate bribery investigating committee holds that the election of William Lorimer to the United States senate "would not have occurred had it not been for bribery and corruption."

Secretary of State Knox has begun diplomatic negotiations with Great Britain and France for general arbitration treaties between those countries and the United States for the settlement of all future disputes.

The report of the tariff board on wood pulp and paper industries has been submitted to the senate. It is the first complete report of the board and represents an exhaustive study of the cost of production and prices of the products.

Chief Justice Walter Clark of the supreme court of North Carolina has formally announced his candidacy for United States senator to succeed Senator Simmons, who will be a candidate for re-election. Governor Kitchen will also be a candidate.

CHAMPAGNE WAREHOUSE AT AY WRECKED BY THE MOBS.

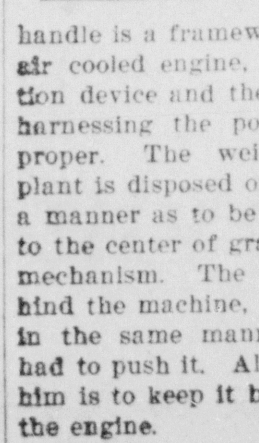

department of Marne. Then news came from Paris that the chamber of deputies had nullified the action of the senate and that the question of delimitation had been referred to the council of state, and the rioting stopped.

Most of the wine destroyed was in the establishments of the Marne in which raw wines from not only the Aube, but foreign countries, were made into champagne. There is enough of the precious wine in store, experts declare, to obviate any danger of famine in America, though there may be a slight increase in price.

LAWN MOWING MADE EASY.

Little Gasoline Engine Does All the Work and Never Gets Tired.

Many lawn mowers of the large type have for some time been equipped with gasoline engines as motive power, but the accompanying illustration shows a gasoline engine driven lawn mower of the small type ordinarily pushed over the lawn by the operator. The actual mowing machine differs but little from the hand pushed device, but attached to the handle is a framework bearing a small air cooled engine, gasoline tank, ignition device and the gears required for harnessing the power to the mower proper. The weight of the power plant is disposed on the frame in such a manner as to be balanced in respect to the center of gravity of the mowing mechanism. The operator walks behind the machine, grasping the handle in the same manner as if he really had to push it. All that is required of him is to keep it balanced and control the engine.
